Lawyer Hayes Charges Capt. Walsh with Drinking at Table in His Uniform.

There is trouble brewing for the race track people.

Charles S. Hayes, a lawyer who denles that he has a retainer from one or any pool-room keeper, but says he is acting as attorney for "persons who is acting as attorney for "persons who is are interested in stopping bookmaking and gambling on the horse races at the tracks," is brewing the trouble.

Mr. Hayes submitted the affidavits to Mr. Jerome this afternoon and to Commissioner Partridge, who turned them over to Chief Inspector Cortright, who in turn gave them to Inspector Grant, who was despatched immediately to the tracks," is brewing the trouble.

The Celebrated Novelist and Malcolm Ford Had Been at Odds Over Their Father's Estate-Murderer's Attempt at Suicide Successful-Victim but Recently Married.

Paul Leicester Ford, the celebrated novelist, author of "Janice Meredith," was shot and killed in his home at No. 33 East Seventyseventh street, this afternoon by his brother, Malcolm Webster Ford, the athlete, who then committed suicide. The brothers had been enemies for eleven years since the death of their father, Gordon L. Ford, of Brooklyn, who left an estate valued at $2, 000,000 to all of his children save Malcolm, whom he disinherited because of his connection with athletic sports.

Paul Ford was sitting at his desk in his house coat when Malcolm entered the room this afternoon. His wife, who is in a delicate condition, was in her room upstairs.

When Paul refused Malcolm's de revolver and shot him in the left breast. Paul fell to the floor.

Malcolm stood looking at him moment and then shot himself through the heart, dropping dead beside his crippled brother. Paul Ford lived for ten minutes. The only words he uttered were:
